Brief of the session

A mentoring series of sessions was organised by GTU Innovation and Startup Centre – Ahmedabad. Mentoring can help to get the right talent on board, find the right investors, determine company's worth, or help lay the foundations of the company culture. The goals and objectives of the Executive mentor relationship: Help identify career paths for students/Startup/Entrepreneurs and support personal growth, provide an opportunity for students to learn and practice professional networking skills. Equip students with the understanding and tools to make ethical and informed decisions. Mentoring helps to reach their full potential, promoting their personal and professional development in a supportive way. It will enhance professional skills in current and future management and startup ecosystem scenario.

These sessions were especially organised on Every Monday by Prof. Tushar Panchal (CEO - GISC, Professor at Graduate school of management - GTU) for the students/ startups who need assistance in terms of nurturing, Idea validation- compaction and business model, market penetration and lot more. It helps innovator to think through the most important aspects of startup—such as innovative; product or service, target market, and the resources that need to support.

Considering the pandemic situation, GTU Innovation and Start-up Centre keep arranging the mentoring series virtually to continue our promise of assistance and support to the start-ups.

- ❖ Total 97 students/startups registered themselves for mentoring session, among which 04 students/start-ups get regular assistance and mentoring by Pro. Tushar Panchal.
